the wind

¿How is the wind today, East or West?

That is the question we must ask ourselves before planning our day.

It is not windy or it is soft, "because life isn't all a bowl of cherries". In the days of westerly winds (The wind comes from where the sun sets), it is better to stay in Vela Blanca towards the easterly winds (the wind comes from where the Sun rises). If it is easterly winds, we recommend from Vela Blanca towards the West, although if we look for, we will find a cove with an eastward orientation to take shelter.

If the wind is overly strong, our suggestion is to visit the inland areas, such as the Villa de Níjar and its surroundings; they are fantastic experiences for those days.

Huebro SOURCE OF LIFE

When it is shared with people of Níjar, Huebro appears: "So, I go to Huebro to get water", "do you know that there is a very good road to Huebro?", "In Níjar there is also water and green fields, come to Huebro and you will see".

The fact is that Huebro is the origin. It is the origin of the water that emanates and goes down its watercourse and an interesting Moorish system of irrigation to Níjar, giving life to the vegetable gardens and the Villa.

Also, this water and the pronounced slope to Villa de Níjar made possible the development of the milling industry of the large cereal grown in the plains of Campohermoso and the Coast of Níjar. The remains of 22 water mills prove them.

It is very recommendable to walk the 5 km of the path of the water mills, we will feel the freshness of its watercourse, the smell of its varied vegetation, the sound of the water pouring between the rocks, we can play to discover the mechanism of devices designed to convert the waterfall into energy of useable mechanics and to enjoy of a wonderful walk.

At the end of the road we can find a pleasant drink of spring water, a viewpoint 700 m. above the sea from where you can see the region of Níjar to Cabo de Gata and the possibility of sharing experiences with the seven inhabitants who still live in this small neighborhood. From here we have the possibility, after 13 km of ascension, to climb to the Colativi, the highest peak in Sierra Alhamilla, a bleak land full of mining and agricultural history.

In this small village you can find the church of the Virgen del Rosario which is taken up in a entertaining pilgrimage on the first Sunday in October.

Villa de Níjar ARTISAN VILLA

We come seeking for the coast, the natural spaces, but we always have the curiosity, the desire to know the history, the tradition of the locals, and the beauty and culture created by generations.

That is the curiosity which leads us to la Villa de Níjar, "The artisan Villa" and its neighbourhood of Las Eras, where the majority of its craftsmen are located. Nowadays these craftsmen open their doors for visitors, showing the traditional work processes, undoubtedly a great experience to live. We also find elaboration of jarapas or rugs and utensils made with esparto which are sold in the numerous bazaars and shops and even to see exhibitions of thick fabric used to make rugs, with the traditional loom. Local artists and craftsmen from other parts of the world offer a unique diversity of art and crafts.

Originally a Moorish village, it has a historical center of singular beauty with a Mudejar church from the 16th century and an even older watchtower. Walking along its streets, climbing to the watchtower, entering the church to contemplate its magnificent coffered ceiling, visiting the Water Museum, where the municipal tourism office is located and finally tasting the local gastronomy, (we recommend the tapas in its numerous bars) all these things will make us happy for a day. We will also find a spectacular garden center which is itself an open air museum and a butterfly farm at the exit of the Villa.

For lovers of strong emotions, on 16 January the party of the sparklers is celebrated. San Sebastian patron is on 20 January and at the end of September we can see the Refajonas and the regional dances at the autumn fair with the exciting noon fair.

16th of January - Fiesta de los Chisperos
20th of January - Patrón San Sebastián

La Granatilla y Pantano de Isabel II THE JEWELS OF NIJAR

In the area of the Villa of Nijar are located Hidden treasures.

The Swamp of Isabel II, a magnificent work inaugurated by the same queen, failed in its attempt to start crops in all the lands of Campohermoso, cultivated thanks to the water of the aquifer and the desalination of seawater. A series of natural disasters filled in its first years of life.

The experience is unparalleled, that great work of masonry, abandoned, surrounded by a wild landscape of rich vegetation and better views. It is a place to get lost and to enjoy photography and the contemplation of the environment.

Another treasure is found next to the exit of the motorway towards Campohermoso Lucainena, el Hoyazo de Nijar or la Granatilla. Geological treasure with a pleasant access on the south side, this Ancient atoll (one of the best preserved in the world), shows us shiny minerals such as garnets, the hyaline quartz or Cordierite, described for the first time in this enclave. Go into the crater and being surrounded by circular volcanic structure crowned by fossilized coral reefs, is a highly recommended experience.

It is advisable to hire one of the ecotourism or geotourism companies which show us this singular space from respect and knowledge.

Fernán Pérez Las Hortichuelas CROSSROAD

To go to the other side of the Park, of the municipality, of the territory, you have to pass through Fernán Pérez, a small town that welcomes us in its square with a very traditional flavor.

Its bar, place where life revolves around, offers the possibility of integrating in the experiences of the locals to share a pleasant conversation tasting typical dishes of the region like gurullos, wheat and others, in tapas or in rations. Next to the village, on top of the hill, a windmill recently restored, invites us to visit this artifact and the rural houses that are next to it. There are interesting structures of the culture of water as its aqueduct, laundry and water wheels.

On the way to Las Negras we will cross the Cañada Segura, a place name that alludes to the past livestock of the region and the cattle that came from the Sierra de Segura to spend the winter. In it we will see many agricultural structures, ending in a small mountain port and impressive volcanic lava flows (El Peñón de Bornos).

In front of us the neighborhood of Las Hortichuelas, with the same essence as Fernán Pérez, where the locals collect potatoes and Raf tomato of great quality which are offered to us to taste them in the bar.

From here we can continue the visit to Las Negras, Rodalquilar or to enter the roads of the interior, arriving at the farmhouse of Montano and later to the cortijo del Fraile or Hornillo.

From 27 to 29 May - Fiesta de San Fernando

Aguamarga and its mineral loading

THE RELAX PARADISE

It is surrounded by white hills created in old marine backgrounds, sculpted by the wind and sea and cutlery by sparse vegetation which gives them an attractive character.

It is a village of agricultural, livestock and fishing origin, due to the existence of sweet water. At the moment it is dedicated almost exclusively to tourism, it is a paradise nestled in a paradisiac cove of fine and white sand.

Agua Amarga is a town where walking along its streets, around the square, we can find marvelous fashion and accessories shops. Where you do not feel like a stranger, where everything is designed to make you feel special. It also highlights in this neighborhood the lush vegetation; it shows that people like the care of small gardens and orchards.

A perfect place to rest, to enjoy a good walk, good food, and good views and why not, to buy some details which make you feel special.

But for adventures, we must go to the surroundings, the Northeast, towards Carboneras. The mineral loading dock, abandoned structures, dormant testimony of the mining past of the region is a place which has been restored in a natural way, leaving integrated into space. There are cliffs and small, solitary and exotic bays. To the Southwest, a path leads us through the wild coves de Enmedio, Plomo and it passes from San Pedro to Las Negras.

Enmedio and El plomo coves are two jewels of nature that we must enjoy without alter; it is very advisable to go there off high season.

From the 22nd to the 24th of July we can enjoy the Feasts in Honor of Santiago Apostle and in mid-August, coinciding with the fisherman's holidays in Carboneras, a popular race is celebrated of great tradition "El Agua-Carbo", which unites the two municipalities.

*From 22 to 24 July - Fiesta de Santiago Apóstol
On the middle of August - Fiestas del Pescador*

El Plomo - Cala Enmedio

WILD TERRITORY

Between Agua Amarga and Las Negras we find a wild coast, a space of difficult access by land, with one exception a poor dirt track that takes us to Del Plomo cove and a beautiful trail which runs along this coast.

Our proposal is evident, to travel the 14 kilometers of the path Agua Amarga-Las Negras or to go along the sea, by kayak or by boat. Whatever you choose, the adventure, the enjoyment and the feeling of being touring a special territory is assured.

Leaving Agua Amarga and after passing a few hills covered with esparto and different botanical resources, we will arrive at Cala de Enmedio, characterized by its crystal waters and its peace it is ideal for lovers of geology, for their spectacular geological formations and mineralizations.

Continuing with the itinerary and walking the old areas of the farmhouse of Enmedio and afterward the farmhouse El Plomo.

La Cala del Plomo is our next stop, on foot, by car in the path or by sea, this cove deserves a visit without hurries. In a volcanic enclave, this cove is located between white limestones reefs which generate fine and clear sands and crystalline waters. It is advisable and unavoidable to walk along its sand and cliffs or snorkeling.

Continuing towards San Pedro, by sea we will find numerous coves, inaccessible by land, such as Cala Puente, Cala Chumba and Cala Montoya. By land we will find steppes of esparto by cliffs of huge beauty and the best views, until you arrive to San Pedro.

Las Negras - San Pedro

MAGIC AND ENERGY

San Pedro and Las Negras are known throughout the world among lovers of natural paradises, away from the mundane noise of cities and civic norms.

The strength of its "Cerro Negro", its beach protected from wind, the young and fun atmosphere of its people and bars make Las Negras the perfect place to look for an adventure, during day or night. The mill that we find when you enter is a municipal point of information in summer. Here we are informed of the numerous offers of restaurants and activities of active tourism, emphasizing diving, kayaking and the boat routes.

From the beach, boats depart to San Pedro (search of authorized companies and with security guarantees). You can arrive to San Pedro by land, through a nice trail of 4 km which begins in the far north of the town.

Is San Pedro a myth or reality? It is truly an amazing place, full of energy and inspiration, but one thing is that you have to find the best weather, look for a day without wind off the summer season and go in good company or alone, unhurried and open to share with nature and people that you could meet in your visit.

16th of January - Fiesta de San Antón
14-15th of August - Fiesta en Honor de la Virgen

Los Albaricoques, Cortijo del Fraile-Montano-Hornillo

LOS CORTIJOS DEL HORNILLO

The Hornillo is the valley which is formed between Cabo de Gata Mountains and the Serrata; so called because it acts as an oven generating heat.

In this location, there is a small town, chosen by the Spaguetti western as stage before its resemblance to the bleak villages of northern Mexico. It is well worth riding around scenarios which are good interpreted with signage, recreating a duel between cowboys, remembering mythical moments of this cinema.

Then, it is recommended to visit The Museum Restaurant Alba, a must stop to taste the authentic Almeriense cuisine: gurullos, acelgas esparragas, wheat, porridge and desserts like tarbinas, pan de calatrava and others.

We take the road to the valley Of Doña Francisca and Rodalquilar and we enter into fields of dry farming and remains of abandoned farmhouses, some of them restored for rural tourism, where you can breathe an air full of peace, in the sunny and windy moors.

We arrived at Cortijo Del Fraile, famous for inspiring Bodas de sangre by Federico García Lorca and Por un puñal de claveles by the writer Carmen de Burgos Colombine. A farmhouse like this one had in territory all the necessary things for a simple life, linked to the fruits of the nature.

From here, the path starts and it goes through the trident of Cortijadas Fraile-Montano-Hornillo, today almost abandoned but promising future, thanks to ecological tourism and the demand for these spaces well preserved, full of history and integration with the environment.

The settlers of these farmhouses and other similar ones of the region, migrated to the towns of colonization Atochares, Pueblo Blanco, San Isidro and Campohermoso in the '60s and 70s giving rise to the economic miracle of province, "intensive farming under plastic".

Rodalquilar GOLD MINE

The fact of being a volcanic boiler, as a satellite dish directed to space, with a land full of minerals, it makes that artists and sensitive people look for this place to rest and create.

Rodalquilar is one of those places where the traveler perceives a special energy. The mining past conditions this beautiful valley, accommodating numerous mineral treasures. From the Romans, different civilizations exploited gold, alums, lead, silver... Its mining history, which ended in 1965, left a large number of facilities which were reconverted into installations of public service following the creation of the Natural Park: the Botanical Garden, Geomining Museum (Cabo de Gata-Níjar is also a Geopark), Administrative Office of the Park, information point, Exhibition Hall and Services of attention to the visitor.

We can spend a full day visiting independently or with specialized guides, these magnificent facilities, where they will explain us the different singularities of the environment.

Rodalquilar also offers another attractive place, the little village created next to administrative facilities, where we can stay or eat in its bars and restaurants. Undoubtedly, it is a singular place of beautiful and quiet spaces which keep us away from the bustle of the beach. Both its inhabitants, descendants of the miners, as well as artists from all parts of the world, offer us services and art, as there is always some exposure to cultivate the mind, at some of its three exhibition halls; the Room of the Natural Park, the Point Information Center or the Nature Hotel, which is named as the famous Carmen de Burgos, writer of this locality highly recommended.

29th of July - Fiesta del Turista

El Playazo-Cala Cuervo PIRATE SHORE

The treasures of Rodalquilar attracted the pirates for a long time. The oldest coastal fortress of the area bears witness to this, "The castle of the Alums", receives the name from the minerals it protected.

The alum reached a great value in past times, since they were used to dye clothes, a sign of wealth and distinction. Later (18th century) it became the castle of San Ramón in the cliff next to the beach, one more piece, an ambitious program of defense of the coast. These defenses definitely gave stability to the region, which began to be populated, giving rise to the existing urban centers.

The Playazo is one of those earthly paradises, where we can enjoy a beach of fine sand, as if it were a dream. Its seabed of clear and calm waters, make of this place the perfect place to snorkel, highly recommended in September and October, when the waters are warm and when it is not full of people.

From el Playazo starts a path to the east; it travels 2 km along a cliff of exceptional views. We will pass behind the San Francisco Ramón battery, crossing watercourse with a Rich vegetation of palmettos, bushes, Periploca and aromatic plants.

We walk along the hill of the Molata, to our left; we have the hill that gives name to the trail. Its geological origin takes us back to the submarine past of these rocks formed of white sand in which we can observe numerous marine fossils. It is a place to enjoy the views and curious rocky formations of its cliffs.

Las Amatistas Cala de Los Toros - Requena

THE HEART OF THE PARK

The spectacular itinerary from Rodalquilar to Isleta del Moro, takes us to the Amatista viewpoint, from where we can observe Northward La torre de los lobos and Southward the peaks of Los Frailes and Los Escullos.

In the viewpoint we find a magnificent ceramic panel that shows us the ecosystem surrounding us with its entire species. In the parking there is an information point and the ZEPIM zones, environmental protection of marine ecosystems at the Mediterranean level, which includes Park waters.

From here we go down to the Cala de los Toros, a place name which reminds us the farming past of the area. Together with this small and hidden cove, we can protect ourselves from the sun under the shadow of a tiny pinewood; it is a place of freedom and enjoyment, where it is possible to meet the nature in its purest form.

From the parking of La Cala de los Toros starts a path towards the farmhouse of Requena (very close to the cortijo Del Fraile). Old way of communication between the Isleta Del Moro and the Llanos de Doña Francisca. The road begins with a rise that goes through the Barranco del Negro, where we find the pools of water and the only ethnic pine forest of the Park. When we hit the summit, we are in the Rellana of Rodalquilar, from where you have unbeatable views of the volcanic caldera from Rodalquilar. From here you continue along a road to the Requena ravine. The descent of the ravine between a garden of native flora, will give us many joys, for the landscapes, the flora and the authenticity of the place, where it has kept its splendour for centuries.

La Isleta del Moro FISHING AND DIVING

Village of fishermen with tradition, port of sea without port, nature has provided to this place with the most desired by a sailor, shelter to all winds.

Its outstanding islet, which leaves as a wall the waters and its settlement in a protected bay, make La Isleta Del Moro the place of departure of numerous sea activities; and sportive fishing, diving, snorkelling, boat trips...

In addition, La Isleta is a place of meeting, food, party. The hospitality of its people, its restaurants of fresh fish, its coves and the fun local holidays, make this town a good choice to visit it again.

From 14 to 16 July - Fiesta en Honor a la Virgen del Carmen

Los Escullos – Castitlo – El Embarcadero

HIKING

It is a paradise of shapes and textures, beach of white sands and ripped cliffs. In short, an endless number of landscapes, a delight for the eyes.

In the north-east of el pico del Fraile, the highest mountains of the mountain range, which fall directly to the sea, where it is found with a fossil dune separated by the waves in pitfalls or Escullos.

This space is full of surprises; a beautiful sandy beach is waiting for us, after several hostels, restaurants and a nightclub. Then, the castle of San Felipe, castle of the seventeenth century and ruins of an old barracks of the Civil Guard, which informs us of the constant presence of the pirates in the recent past.

Here, the path begins which passes through Cortijo Grande and the Pozos de los Frailes to San José.

Continuing the paved road, we will arrive to Embarcadero cove. Its name indicates that it has been used and it is used as nautical zone. It is also a great place to practice diving and snorkel. From here the path starts and it takes us to Cala Higuera and San José.

Cortijo Grande El Pozo de los Frailes Cala Higuera WALKING

It is a pleasant walk that goes through the agricultural and pastoral area under the peaks of the Frailes.

The Escullos unites El Pozo de Los Frailes with a path of 4.7 km that crosses El Cortijo Grande. In the path, we can analyze different structures such as: a waterwheel moved by animals, wells, windmill and small walls. All these things show us the curious way of life of a recent past. The path leads us next to a watercourse of rich vegetation until our next stop.

El pozo de los Frailes lived around its waterwheel placed in the watercourse and moved by mules or oxen. It was the source of life of the neighborhood to which the population established. We should approach the waterwheel and make it work; we will understand its mechanism in an exemplary way and the singular hardness of life in this corner of the world. Currently, tourism has generated wealth and accommodation services and high quality restoration. In the information point we can orient ourselves to continue our route.

Before entering San José, one roundabout gives us the option to visit Cala Higuera, at the north of the town after a short earth track we reaches this corner. On the hill, we can see the Higuera lookout tower and in front of us a unique space, protected from the Easterly winds, and with a view to Morrón de los Genoveses, with some dreamy seabeds. We have all the ingredients to spend an unforgettable time that we can end up on the bar terrace enjoying the sunset. From here, the path goes across the Integral Reserve of Loma Pelada to Los Escullos.

From 14th to 16th of July - Fiestas en honor a la Virgen del Carmen en el Pozo de los Frailes

San José

SERVICES FOR EVERYBODY

Privileged territory, small bay or big cove where a tiny fishermen village was set, protected by the castle of San José. Nowadays, it is the Barracks of the Spanish Civil Guard.

This village has been developed as a Tourism center and services for the tourist, on the one hand, thanks to its marina and on the other hand, thanks to its urban management. With a kind architecture, a promenade and numerous shops, hotels and restaurants, where you can always find the services you are looking for. A welcoming, familiar, quiet and fun environment is the hallmark of this place.

Numerous leisure activities are offered in the port, the beach and the Tourist office; boat trips, diving, snorkelling, kayaking, paddle, surf, routes on foot, horse routes or 4x4 ... As you can see, San José is full of fun. When night falls, there are many people in the main square, among craftsmen's stalls musicians and mimes. We can take some beers, an Italian ice cream or have dinner in one of the numerous and thematic restaurants.

First week of August - Tourist Feast

Los Genoveses – Mónsul – Media Luna

UNSPOILT BEACHES

It is an idyllic and preserved place away from the city by express desire of the owners and because it is located in an area of protection.

Access for motor vehicles is only regulated in high season, the rest of the year this paradise is almost deserted and lonely. It is a luxury to walk along its beaches of fine sand, to photograph its places as it was made before in numerous films and advertising spots, hiking by its cliffs, to cross the coast from the sea by boat, kayak or paddle surf, snorkeling, to enjoy a clear sky full of stars in its nights and above all feel free, unwordly, lost and far from routine and daily life willingly.

Here you play to find your site. Your place is Genoveses, a wide cove with very fine sand and shallow waters; Mónsul is a large cove but closed by cliffs and dominated by its dune and its known Stone; and El Barronal, an intimate cove with limited accessibility attracted by nudists; Media Luna cove, little sister of Mónsul cove; Carbon cove at the background where the rock is mixed with the sand creating an exceptional space for snorkeling or any of the intimate and limited coves between Genoveses and Barronal. Which one do you prefer?

Vela Blanca Cala Rajá EL RINCÓN DE ENMEDIO

Enmedio is the former access to San José and its unspoilt beaches. Currently, it is restricted to motor vehicles by environmental criteria.

We are in a corner of the wild and wonderful park. From here, we recommend a walk by foot or bicycle, since you access one of the best conserved areas from the volcanic mountain range. Palm trees with a rich flora and wonderful landscapes are in this path of about 2.5 Km, and it is also accessible from San José.

"La Torre de la Vela Blanca" is a privileged place with a magnificent view of the entire coast, from the lighthouse of Cabo de Gata westward, to San José eastward, and in the background the Cerros de los Frailes. The Construction was conceived like a watchtower similar to the tower from Cala Higuera to eastward. Today it has been turned into a house.

The tower is built on a dark volcanic dome with a vertical wall to the sea of 200 m. The name of Vela Blanca comes from this due to a stain of volcanic ash at its base, which can not be appreciated from here. However, it is possible to perceive it from somewhere towards the West, as Punta Baja, or from the sea. At the bottom of Vela Blanca, there is a cave which gave shelter to the monk seal and some other tobacco smuggler.

We can access it by boat or kayak, with some of the local companies.

There is a lane which leads us to a small but attractive cove, Cala Rajá, magical place by its environment and its seabed, ideal to protect yourself from the wind and to practice snorkeling.

Punta Baja - Las Sirenas El Corralete CABO DE GATA CAPE

Punta Baja, Punta Génova or Punta de Los Libros is called in this way due to its columnar disjunctions, rock structures in the form of prisms, which were exploited as quarries of cobbles.

This tip is the real geographical cape, and therefore the most southeast area of the peninsula. The visit is very recommendable if you are looking for strong feelings and charming places full of surprises.

El Arrecife de las Sirenas is one of the most visited and photographed places of the Natural Park, amazing landscapes of nature that inspire a multitude of photographers.

The castle of San Francisco de Paula was built in this place, a coastal fortress to defend the coast from pirates. In 1863 it was used as the foundations of the current lighthouse. With a Tower of 19 meters, its light has a scope of 23 miles and it owns a siren for foggy days, with a range of 7 marine miles. The sea in front of us is cataloged as integral Reserve, to preserve it for being a place of great marine biodiversity and a natural breeding centre for species.

El mar frente a nosotros está catalogado como Reserva Integral, para preservarlo por ser un lugar de gran biodiversidad marina y criadero natural de multitud de especies. To the right of the lighthouse is the Corralete cove, one of the beaches with the best seabeds to observe its biodiversity, with simple glasses and a snorkel.

It is a great experience to get into one of the many fish stocks that we find from the shore of this beach. The variety of fauna and flora is formidable, if you want to know and make the most of this activity, it is interesting to get an expert guide who helps us to interpret the seabed, and this activity will stand out our trip.

La Fabriquilla Las Salinas

THE PEAK OF THE MOUNTAIN

At the end of the plain, at the foot of the volcanic mountains, protected from the wind, the neighborhood of La Fabriquilla is calm and pretty, where there was a small factory of lead smelting at the end of the nineteenth century.

The wide and protected beach of the east is highly appreciated by Almería's people, as well as its magnificent restaurants of fish and paellas.

From this place, most of Kayak routes and boat trips leave. The local companies offer guided tours, and from here, you can access to El Faro, las Sirenas reef, Vela Blanca or the Beach of Mónsul.

From Fabriquilla, the ascent begins to the Cabo de Gata Mountains, when we take a little height, we can enjoy an impressive landscape of the Bay of Almería, the tunny fishery of Monteleva, its Church, and the ponds of the Salinas.

As you climb the mountain, to the left we have an esplanade with route signs about mountain biking "Transalmeriense"; it marks the entrance to the Motores. The westerly winds brought sand which lead to a situation in which the sea will constantly close the feed channel of the salt flats. To solve this situation, a canal from the base of the hill of the Testa was built, place where we are.

A raft at the base of the cliff collects the water boosted by the western storms, and it drops them by gravity to the salt ponds. To not depend on the wind, firstly, windmills were installed and subsequently electric engines, taking up water to the rafts, and thus, increasing the production and profitability of facilities.

It is essential to visit the Salinas and watch the birds. A pedestrian itinerary covers most of its perimeter, and in the five observatories it is allowed to approach the birds comfortably and without disturbing. There are numerous companies that will guide us and provide us a spyglass and binoculars to improve our experience.
